VACCINE SAFETY DEBATE
NEW RESEARCH LINKS VACCINE SCHEDULE WITH AUTISM AND OTHER HEALTH PROBLEMS

Vaccine Myths

VACCINES HAVE BEEN TESTED FOR SAFETY...
FACT: Vaccines are tested individually, but the vaccine schedule has never been tested to assess interaction when multiple are given. The infant vaccine schedule has increased since 1985 from 8 vaccines to 27 vaccines in 2007.

GOVERNMENT AGENCIES RIGOROUSLY MONITOR VACCINE SAFETY...
FACT: Extensive conflicts of interest between CDC and vaccine manufacturers exist, as well as CDC having vested financial interests in the owning of vaccine patents. Such interests do not allow for objective safety, monitoring and oversight of the immunization program, as noted in the 2003 Congressional Report “Mercury in Medicine - Taking Unnecessary Risks”.

MERCURY HAS BEEN REMOVED FROM ALL VACCINES...
FACT: Many vaccines in the 1990s contained mercury. Today this continues with the flu shot now recommended for all infants and pregnant women. Vaccines in developing countries continue to contain high levels of mercury.

Enforce Vaccine Safety

Close Alarming Research Gap - Require a comprehensive study of vaccinated vs. unvaccinated populations for long-term effects of vaccines to determine total health outcomes with regard to vaccine toxicants (e.g. – mercury, aluminum, formaldehyde, etc.), possible detrimental effects of current timeline of immunization schedule and the number of vaccines given at any one time.

End Federal Agency Conflicts of Interest - The CDC spends $300 billion annually on vaccine promotion and $21 million annually on vaccine safety research. A “Safety First” agenda must be adopted with a new independent agency to monitor vaccine safety created to avoid inherent conflicts of interest.

Take the Mercury Out - Immediate removal of mercury containing vaccines from the U.S. vaccine supply and a ban on the export of these vaccines outside of U.S. will prevent unnecessary exposure of children to this harmful neurotoxin.
